Access and opportunity

Siyavuvya Papu

“Young women in the Eastern Cape rural areas or informal settlements have no access to information. I struggle to explain to them what my job is.”

But this is changing as the Department of Public Works is setting up training facilities.
The construction world is changing

“…dawn of a new era, the opportunities for young black females is endless…”

“Any softness has been more empathy than emotion and has added to the management and leadership style with employees respecting and appreciating that leadership demonstrates humanity if a situation calls for this.”

Cristina Teixeira: CFO – Group Five; Businesswoman of the Year 2014

“Women better at detail – very attentive to detail.”

“I am very particular and precise as to how work should be completed and therefore any person who hires me can be sure that they will get good value for their money.”

“Women are more reliable than men: if they have children they will take their jobs very seriously.”
“Houses will be built by women, for women, empowering women.”

Minister Sisulu, August 2014
“I have also been very fortunate to work with a team that has been supportive and respectful to my role however we do understand that there will always be cases of gender bias, I encounter it daily, if not within the organisation then with those I come in contact with, but there is no need to allow this to define your performance – I have found that with hard work demonstrating tangible results I have been recognised for my performance and my gender has not affected this.
